JJ Kavanagh enhances fleet and unlocks savings with swap to iC360 camera system

Long respected as the largest private coach operator in Ireland, JJ Kavanagh has resolved challenging operational fleet issues with the purchase and implementation of the IC360 8-channel camera system from Camera Telematics.

Although CCTV systems were already in use by the business, failings in service and hardware quality resulted in challenges common to fleets worldwide: poor ongoing support, lack of effective features and time-consuming camera maintenance and operation.

“JJ Kavanagh’s excellent service was being held back by a subpar camera system. Camera maintenance was time-consuming and drained the limited time of key staff. Such problems can sometimes be overcome by a small fleet. JJ Kavanagh is not a small fleet. With 2019 around the corner, we’re excited to support the future of such an established company with our unique iC360 multi-camera system.”

Mark Stamper, Group Managing Director of Camera Telematics

JJ Kavanagh now benefits from significant cost and man-hour savings across their fleet after upgrading to the feature-rich iC360 multi-camera system. Chief amongst these valuable features are SD-card free remote camera access, event filtering performed by 24/7 support specialists and Wi-Fi built into the mobile digital video recorder device which removes any ongoing data charge.

“Small deficiencies become serious problems when you maintain a fleet as large as ours. Issues like our previous CCTV system requiring physical access to the cameras to retrieve footage translate at scale to significant costs that can hold a business back in such a competitive environment as the one we operate in. The features and support of Camera Telematics have solved these problems. We look forward to a profitable year ahead with such quality hardware, software and support behind us.”

Paul Kavanagh,
Managing Director of JJ Kavanagh
